· Grand Jury Report.

To the Hon. S. H. Wright, Judge of the Second Judicial Court in andsfor the county of Ormsby, State of Nevada:

We, the Grand Jury, empaneled at the February term of said Court, beg leave to present the following report:

During the sitting of the Grand Jury we have found eight indictments, viz:

Four for burgiary, two for arson. one for assault with a deadly weapon, and one for misdemeanor in office. One presentation for obtaining money under false pretences was ignored.

The committee appointed to examine the books of the Auditor and Treasurer report the same correct and agreeing and sustaining each other. They further report that balances in money called for by the books of said officers were found in the Treasurer.

by the books of said omices were location the Treasury.

In view of the responsibilities of the Public Administrator, the Grand Jury regard his bond as entirely too small and for public safety recommend that it be increased from the present amount (23,000) to $10,000.

The Grand Jury would further recommend the County Commissioners to examine the bonds of all county officials as to their form, legality, amount and responsibility of the sureties thereos.

H. S. Mason, Foreman.

Among the Lawyers

A brief visit to the Ormsby County District Court yesterday afterucon discovered that sugant tribunal deep in the delights of what is known as "The Mule Case." Some subjects of the "Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo" had a mule train. Somewhere about Spooner's station they bed their beedquarers. Being enabled to do so, they got in debt. Then they attempted to make their males pay what they owed, (We believe that's it, but we confess to a condition of not upplement perplexity over law-terms and technical situations which is very far from that of a perfect clearsees of the mental vision.) Buck Davis & Co. got some kind of a claim on the males. Also Jake Winters. So they all went to law; and that's the mule case. While we were there little Joe Lopes, who has all the look of a Mexican of the Aztec strain, was doing duty as an interpreter. It is surprising to see how bright he is. Not only his English is gib and good, but his head is clear. He seemed to us to understand the case quite as well as any lawyer or juryman. May be, if they had had an interpreter to explain the nature of this cause, we could have understood it as well as we under-stood Jos. On one side are General Bob Clarke and Judge Dan Virgin. Col-Bob Clarke and Judge Dan Virgin. Col-onel Ellis and Colonel Davies are con-ducting the other side. This pretty well represents the late internecine war. Still, all bespoke the existence of a con-dition of peace save a slight mixture of incomprehensible disagreement as to the mules. But they all agree that those unhappy animals have eaten their heads off. The plunder we will an existence of the plunder we will an existence. off. The plunder, we will say, is worth about fifteen hundred dollars. The suit, so far, (this being the second trial of it), no far, (this being the second trial of it), has cost about twice that amount. The General looks frowsly, as usual, and steps around nervously, interposing a word in a jorky way, here and again.

Judge Virgin, we note, is growing sleek and rotund in his maturing years. Ellis preserves a soothing serenity of demeanor, while Davies distils about him the aroms of amighility and preserves. the aroma of amiability and professional the aroma of amiability and professional snawiter in modo. (These two last are observing the terms of their parole with exmemplary carefuiness.) Mr. Holm addegreat respectability to the cierical function of the Court; and the jury look as if they entertained a sense of pride at having been aworn by so estimable an official. Certainly they contemplate his venerable head with a comforting expression of security. Judge Wright assures the visiting journalist of the heartiness of his welcome by descending heartiness of his welcome by descending from the presiding chair and mingling. with a becoming relaxation of the judi-cial dignities, with the admiring multitude. Meanwhile the waiting witnesses are recumbent upon the tables in the clerk's office—lay figures of the law. Facilia decensus agerni, which means that it is easy and refreshing to descend from our own Court, organized under the undisputed sovereignty of Nevada, and betake onesself to the State House, and betake onesself to the State House, there to listen to the unfolding of the great Bonanza case. We had the pleasure of looking at the puzzing Bishop signatures yesterday. (We refrain from expressing our opinion thereupon lest we should be summoned as an expert.) The defense is well into the bowels of its testimony-taking. Yesterday, his Honor, Julge Sawyer, was so severely afflicted with the sick-headache as to be obliged to absent himself from the afternoon to absent himself from the afternoon session. It is a very patient and much interested jury—a jury to whom we should be quite willing to submit any small litigatious matter of our own. Probably not before the latter part of next week will this year. submitted to the jury.

Con. VIRGINIA DIVIDENDS. - The Chropicle of last evening, in its summary of the mining operations for the week, on the Comstock says: "The payment of monthly dividends of $2 per share will most positively be resumed in May—unless, indeed, some disestrous in May—unless, indeed, some disestrons calamity should happen in the meantime. The present daily yield is from 250 to 300 tons of very rich ore. On the lat of April this yield will be increased to between 400 and 500 tons. Next Monday stoping the ore on the 1650 foot level has commenced. Had it not been for the swelling of the ground in many places in the west drift on this level, which necessitated the employment of a large force of men to ease the timbers, this work could have been commenced some days ago. The ground is now properly secured, however, and no further trouble is anticipated from this cause. The south drift running through the ore vein to connect with the deep winz is about 70 feet, its entire length in very high grade ore. The ore stopes on the upper levels continue to yield ore in the usual quantities and of the usual quality.

be usual quality. Yesterday was the dreadfullest day for winds and whirlwinds, dust and dust clouds, sand and send-showers we have experienced for many a week. Last night the wind had luiled, and although there was a heavy reserve-fund of Pogonip up youder, on the Bierra, the stars peopled out bravely, and the frogs set up their cheerful crosk. There seems to have been quite a fall of snow on the higher peaks, east and west. Last night the barometer was rising.

A Connection.-The Tribune of lest evening corrects our statement that the Thompson-Powning libel suit grows out of something that appeared in the Tri-bune. We stand corrected. The error was the reesh of our misunderstanding of the case as stated by our informant.

Hous Jasper Babeock and Wellington Stewart, members of the lately-sitting House of Assembly, were in the city

MINING AT CANDRLANA. — Says the Borax Miner of March 24:

Mr. M. Holland and others are working three 8-hour shifts on a double compariment sheft on the autern side of Candelars hill, for the purpose of prospecting a number of locations in that vicinity. This is the first regular working-sheft ever started in the district, and may give an impouse to a more thorough and systematic method of development. The sheft is progressing downward at the rate of from four to six test per day.

ng'on, March 30.-Schare die Washington, March 30.—Schurz distrusting Hampton's proteines, to day asked him to sign rome written agreement, Hampton fielly refused. He said:
"The question is as simple as a hoshandle; withdraw the troops and peace will follow. This is all I want, and it is the tenst I can accorpt."

Chamberlaim has been offered either the Spanish or Swim mission if he will give up the contest.

Hampton was cheered by a crowd this morning while leaving his hotel. Some Republicans hissed, and the police had to interfere to stop a fight.

New York, March 30.—The World's Washington correspondent thinks there is no reason to doubt that Hayes will recognize Hampton, and hopes the recognition of Nichole will soon follow.

tion has been made by O. M. Ames, the reputed organizer of the Labor-ers Union. He confirms the reports previously published as to the mission of the "Council of Nine," stating that he joined the order for the purpose of exercising his influence against violence, and when he found it impossible longer to prevent it he statement that the Council of Nine has been simply a cloak to shield the Laborers' Union, and that the latter organization is properly responsible for all the crimes committed against life and property. He details the signs, passwords, grips and tokens of the order. Those who took the second degree in the Union were sworn to kill Chinese, and whites also, if need be to effect the extermination of the former. His confession details a state of affairs here that would be absolutely incredible were his statements not supported by other evidence.
